Cardenas Campaign Releases Full Fiscal Discipline Analysis and Mid-Year 2026 Report

*CHICAGO, IL * — The Cardenas for Chicago campaign today released two major policy and accountability documents: the Chicago Fiscal Discipline Agenda — Comprehensive Analysis and the Mid-Year 2026 McKinsey-Style Report.

Together, the reports provide a clear fiscal picture of City Hall performance, identify operational and budget pressure points, and outline a practical implementation framework for restoring credibility, service delivery, and long-term financial stability.

"Chicago families are already paying enough," said George Cardenas. "These reports are about discipline, transparency, and measurable execution. We are showing the public exactly where the pressure is, what must change, and how we will act."

What the release includes

- Chicago Fiscal Discipline Agenda — Comprehensive Analysis (Full Report)
- A full framework for expenditure controls, contract discipline, and implementation governance.
- A clear policy roadmap to reduce waste, improve accountability, and strengthen service performance.
- Mid-Year 2026 McKinsey-Style Report
- A data-driven mid-year operational and fiscal status review.
- Summary of key indicators and performance insights to guide immediate executive action.

Why this matters now

With continued pressure on budgets, service expectations, and public trust, the campaign is prioritizing an execution-first approach: clear standards, measurable milestones, and transparent reporting.

These releases are part of the campaign's broader commitment to publish practical governing plans that can be implemented in the first 100 days.
